

Status of the German National Biomass Strategy – towards climate action and sustainable value creation

Hosts: Nils Freiberg (BMWK), Lara Dammer (nova-Institut)

In the workshop, Nils Freiberg from the German Federal Ministry for Economic Affairs and Climate Action will present the status quo of the national biomass strategy to stakeholders. He will introduce the most important strategic goals and possible policy approaches. In the discussion, moderated by Lara Dammer from nova-Institute, we will collect feedback from the audience and exchange views.

Key questions will be: What is necessary to direct biomass into applications that create the most added value, climate benefits and options for cascading use? What can the German government do to support this development? And what can be learned from this process for Europe and other countries?